I arrived at the foot hills of the Frozen mountains at the head of Red river the same evening barely in time to build my camp, and after a hastily prepared meal and dressing and feeding my horse, I retired for the night. I arose early next morning and soon dispatched breakfast and feeding my dog and beast, and was out in the mountains in an incredible short time. It was a beautiful morning. The air was soft and hazy, a gentle breeze was flitting through the trees and undergrowth and along the mountain sides. Many wild flowers were budding and blooming. The birds were opening their fall notes in a thousand songs as if to dignify the splendor of the rising sun, which could only be seen on the tree tops in the far off distance. All nature presented an aspect of loveliness as beautiful as a dream of heaven, charmed and awed by the exquisite scenes of nature. Out surrounded me. I pushed forward until I reached the apex of a spur of a ridge that extended to the main dividing Frozen mountain. There was then before me an undulating landscape extending several miles in the distance. As I stood there in wonder and admiration at the enchanting scenes around me, I saw just as they were reaching the summit of a hill, a herd of deer—sixteen in number. They were not in range of my rifle and had discovered me, and having the advantage of the wind I took cover behind a clump of bushes and waited their approach. There were three old bucks and four smaller ones. As they slowly advanced it seemed that the old bucks guided themselves in parading and displaying their majestic forms and stately outlines to the other members of the herd. Often they would walk in advance raising their white feather and antlers high in the air as if to court the favor and respect of all the others by their beauty, haughty pride and self aggrandizement.

At last they came in range of my rifle, and as quick as thought I fired, and at the report of my rifle the largest buck in the herd bounded up several feet high and fell dead. At this the remainder stood amazed and staid, not realizing their perilous condition until I had reloaded my gun and killed the next largest buck in the gang. At this they bounded off with the swiftness of the wind and were soon lost to sight and hearing. These were among the largest and fattest deer ever killed. The horns, legs and chestnut drop of the preening year upon which they feasted was yet plentiful. I managed by means of lever power to hang up my deer and take out their entrails. I then proceeded to another hunt and had not gone exceeding a mile when I saw another herd in the head of a deep ravine. Upon observation I discovered the wind was contrary, and I had to retrace my steps and take cover behind the opposite side of the mountain in order to gain their rear and the advantage of the wind. In this I finally succeeded without their discovery of my maneuvers, and in less time than it takes to write it I had killed a large barren doe, which was in as equally good condition as either of the bucks. I soon had her hung and dressed. It was then about twelve o'clock and the weather being moderately warm, I knew it was important to make for home and suit down my deer as soon as possible.

So it was not long before I reached and broke up camp, saddled my horse to return to my deer. These I had to carry one at the time to the nearest house, a distance of six miles away. Just as I came in sight of the last deer I had killed and within easy gun shot, I discovered a huge monster of some description eating the offals of the deer. Upon close examination I discovered it was a catamount, but of such extraordinary size that I was really alarmed. I knew there was but one alternative, and that was to kill it or do worse. So I fired, but the ball took effect too far back in the body to be fatal, and as I was reloading my gun I saw him standing on his hind feet sending in every direction. Finally he got my course, turned his hair the wrong way and bounded toward me, all the time uttering such savage shrieks and yells, and hoarse growls that it made the very blood curdle cold in my veins; but I lost no time in firing the second shot which penetrated his heart. Yet the infuriated beast continued his screams and yell till he came within five feet of where I stood and dropped dead. His body measured five and one-half feet. He was the largest animal of his species that I have ever seen or heard tell of.

After carrying my deer home and doing some work on the farm it was then too late in the season for hunting. So I waited till August, when, according to their custom, deer in large numbers visit the hills. I called "the licks." A deer lick is simply a spot of the water of which is strongly impregnated with iron and sulphur. At these springs the deer come and suck, and this water has the same salutary effect upon them that salt has upon the domestic animal. When the proper time came I made my arrangements to go to a lick that I had learned was well attended. Great care, pains and caution have to be taken in the preparation for watching licks. I arrived in the neighborhood, staid over night, and early next morning I built my blind and scaffold. The blind is simply a covert. The scaffold is a rude elevated construction upon which you keep live coals of fire. In the meantime you have prepared a sufficient quantity of fine splinters out of the richest pine you can get which will ignite the moment it touches the coals, and will illuminate the whole surrounding forest. Being thus prepared I returned to my blind about sun-down, and took my stand and remained almost motionless till about an hour in the night. I heard some deer coming down the mountain side right in the direction of where I was located, and the wind being contrary they soon scented me, gave a few shrill whistles and ran away.

The same thing was repeated several times during the night until I became discouraged and dropped off in a dose of sleep, but it was only a cat nap. On awakening I could distinctly hear some deer sneaking in the lick, and I touched my pine splinters to the coals of fire on my scaffold, and when the light shone out there stood an old buck and two deer directly sneaking away at the water, and apparently oblivious to all their surroundings. For the first time in my life I became nervous and clumsy, but no time was to be lost. I fired away, and at the report of my gun the old buck fell dead. As the deer ran up the hill I saw that one of them was badly wounded. I put my dog after the wounded deer which he caught before he reached the top of the mountain, which was about a mile distant. I managed to hang and dress the buck and by this time it was daylight. I then went to where my dog was watching the deer he had caught and killed. With much difficulty I dragged it down the mountain to a place I could reach with my horse. Upon examination I found that my shot had broken the buck's neck and passed on and broke the shoulder of the doe. I visited these licks several times during this summer, and never went home without carrying a deer; but sometimes I would remain three or four days, and lose as many nights' sleep.

The following fall I made preparations for an extended hunt, and pitched my camp precisely on the same spot I had occupied the previous spring. The weather was just cool enough to be pleasant, a gentle breeze blowing the sky clear, a crystal frost at night brightening the atmosphere and made it glorious and beautiful. I was so much excited with the promising prospects of a successful adventure that I arose before day next morning, and after going through the regular routine of preparation, and while twilight was still lingering I was out in the mountains. I traveled on for several miles but failed to see a single deer. I could find plenty of fresh signs, but nothing else in this way. And with the same result I traveled until about two o'clock in the evening when I turned my course in the direction of my camp. I had not proceeded far till I saw a large herd feeding on chestnuts that was falling from a number of trees that covered a plateau of land just beyond a rivulet crossing its way down the mountain. After taking the usual precaution, I approached in close range, and selecting the largest buck I took a steady aim and fired. Instead of the deer falling dead as I expected, not one moved nor gave any attention to the report of my rifle. I at once reloaded and fired the second time selecting another deer, but with the same result; and after shooting several times I carefully wiped out my gun and re-loaded and taking a rest from the side of a tree and when I fired I saw the bullet strike a tree twenty feet above the deer I shot at. By this I knew my gun was "spelled," as we called it in the common parlance of that day; but it was not at all an uncommon occurrence as I soon testify to myself, as the same thing happened to me often afterwards. However, this gave me more trouble than anything of its character that ever did befall me, and while yet reflecting upon what course to pursue I happened to remember Mr. James Cape, who lived some ten miles distant and was an excellent gentleman. And as I had learned was well skilled in the art and manner of using exercises by which means he could take the spell off of the gun. So I immediately went to his house and related the circumstances of my misfortune to which he made no reply, but took my gun and made a circle around him and then went on with some strange manœuvres, repeating incantations, all of which I did not understand, and finally loaded my gun and handed it to me, and told me to shoot at the first deer I saw, let the distance be long or short, and I would likely have some trouble with it.

I returned to my camp, and early next morning reluctantly ventured out again, but not without some evil forebodings. I went on and in the course of two hours I saw a small herd laboriously feeling along the spur of a ridge in short rifle range, and without any hesitation I fired at the first one I saw, which was a three spike buck. He made a few jumps forward and fell. After reloading I went to where he laid, but in an instant he was upon his feet, his hair raised on its end, his green bloodshot eyes flashing fire, and I had barely time to flash his deadly aim at me by eering behind a small tree that stood close by, his horn striking the tree and throwing bark in my eyes until I was almost blinded. In my sudden and hasty effort to escape I struck the breast of my gun against a springy bush and knocked it out of my hand five feet away.

LETTER FROM IOWA.

Miles Murphy Writes Interestingly About That Country.

ENOS, IOWA, July 28.

SPENCER COOPER, Hazel Green, Ky.

After long neglect, I thought I would write a few lines to the dear old HERALD to give you and your readers some idea of my whereabouts and travels since I left old Kentucky, the place of my birth, and where I spent my boyhood days in glorious sports running over the valleys, and vine-clad hills, where satisfaction and contentment of mind and soul waited their sweetest orders on my wayward life.

I left Kentucky September 2, 1892, and made my way toward the Sunny South and after traveling three days and nights we landed in the central part of the lone star state, where I remained 14 months, or at least long enough to see to my satisfaction that we had not as yet reached the promised land, nor any part of it. So, after winding up my business there I determined to seek the regions of the north and after two days and nights' travel in Bedford, Iowa, Nov. 1st, 1893, travel over both mountains and prairies. After a study of the country for some time, I bought land and located seven miles southeast of Bedford, and in the vicinity of Enos. This country consists of beautiful rolling prairie which are very fertile and productive. Vegetables of all kinds grow in abundance. From what I have seen, and what I can see now of the products of this country, and the amount of live stock fed and shipped from here to other parts of the world, I am made to be thoroughly satisfied and contented to make this my home in the future.

But there is never a home so well satisfied but something could improve it a little, and enclosed you will please find 50 cents for which send me THE HERALD six months, for my satisfaction is due completely without it. Respectfully, MILES J. MURPHY.

SPEECH OF HON. A. F. BYRD,

Nominating Hon. Joseph M. Kendall for Congress from this District at the convention. We as the representative Democracy of the Tenth congressional district of Kentucky, have met in convention today for the purpose of selecting a man from among the many able, anxious, willing and well qualified men in our ranks to represent our party as its standard-bearer in the congressional contest at the coming November election. In making this selection, we should ever keep in view the interests of the party we represent, and the country at large, regardless of party affiliations, and at the same time having due regard for giving due consideration to the individual rights and claims of those whose names may be placed before this convention today as aspirants for the honor which it is to bestow. In making this selection we should remember that the eyes of the great adversary of the right and justice of our people are upon us, ready and eager to take advantage of any mistake that we may make here today. Yet the confidence which I have in the integrity, honesty of purpose and good judgment of this convention, and the loyalty of the people of this district to the great, underlying principles of Democracy prompts me to say that we are here today not only to nominate a candidate for congress, but to name the man who shall represent us in the next congress of the United States. Of this there is no doubt. I have the honor of placing before this convention the name of a man whom it has hitherto been the pleasure of this district to honor—an act which they will never have reason to regret. He is a young man, the mere mention of whose name calls to our mind the scenes of a similar convention to this which was held in this building a little more than two years ago, in which opposition vanished like clouds before the sunshine. During his brief service in congress his record is clear and pure as a sunbeam, free from the slightest stain of corruption or the faintest shadow that would in any way reflect either upon himself or his constituents. His record is one of which any man might justly be proud, one which does credit to his district, credit to his state, and one which will ever stand a living testimonial of his loyalty to his friends and his party, and his courage and ability to advocate and defend those measures and principles which were to the best interest of those whom he represented, and to the country at large. His record while in congress will compare favorably with that of any man who has ever represented our district. As we saw him in this building on that occasion, standing, as it were, in the footprints of that noble ancestor, who had so recently fallen at his post of duty, doing battle for country, and who was just entering upon a career of honor and distinction to himself and of importance and usefulness to his constituents, we could not fail to recognize in him a true type of Kentucky manhood, and one who was destined to be heard and felt throughout his state and throughout the country as a statesman and a man of influence, if his youthful ambitions and aspirations were not smothered by the hand of personal envy, political prejudice or the politician's boodie.

It is for this young man whom I shall name, that the masses of the people of this district are clamoring today. As an evidence of this fact he comes to this convention today with the solid endorsement of ten out of sixteen counties in a contest between seven of the leading Democrats of the district. He is a stalwart Democrat of the truest type. Whenever a political contest is to be had he is always to be found with the armor on and in the thickest and hottest of the battle, and is always found equal to the emergency. No one of his age has contributed more to the success of the Democratic party nor takes greater delight in her victories. He is a young man who possesses every essential requisite to make us an able and efficient representative in congress. He is true to the principles of his party and has the courage and ability to advocate and defend them. He was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth, neither has he been reared on the lap of ease, nor rocked in the cradle of luxury, but he has accomplished and made himself what he is today by reason of his own personal ambition, inherent energy and unconquerable will. He has by his perseverance, pluck, determination and earnest, patient effort, aided and accompanied by the advice of true and devoted parents, succeeded in procuring a good education, the best that could be obtained in the schools of this state; in taking a course in the law department of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor—a school second to none in the United States; in building up for himself a lucrative and extensive law practice; and, in short, he has by strict adherence to the principles of right, justice and morality, and the faithful pursuit of honest, legitimate callings, succeeded in building for himself a character so formidable that even those who oppose him in this contest will not dare to assail it.

In addition to the fact of his eminent fitness for the place to which he aspires, that which most endears him to my heart today; that which prompts me to let my voice go out in his behalf, that which makes me most solicitous for his success in this contest are the facts that he was born and reared among the singing streams, the vine-clad hills and towering mountains of Eastern Kentucky, the place which I delight to call my home, and the fact that he is the son of the late lamented Hon. John W. Kendall, I refer to the Hon. Joseph M. Kendall, of Floyd county. It was Joseph M. Kendall, who in the congressional contest of 1890, when this district was being flooded and overrun by Republican money, and defeat to the Democratic party seemed inevitable, and his father not having sufficient means with which to avert the impending danger and meet the emergency of the case, it was this young man who drew from the bank the last dollar of the hard earnings of his life and put it into this contest and said: "Go for the success of my father and the Democratic party."

The result is too well known for me to repeat it. He is now, gentlemen, asking a remuneration from the hands of his people, and he is entitled to it. Nominate him and the Democratic party will have a standard bearer of whom she will be proud, and the Tenth congressional district a representative who will honor both himself and his constituents. Nominate him and thereby manifest your appreciation of true Kentucky manhood. Gentlemen, do in this matter what your party and your district will endorse, and your conscience and heaven will approve, and when you have done so you will have given this young man the nomination.

G. T. CENTER
Defines his Position on the Turnpike Question.

I learn that it is being circulated all over this county that I am contemplating, if elected county judge, on having a tax levied on this county for the purpose of building a turnpike from Torrent to Hazel Green. This false statement has been gotten up and caused to be circulated by tricksters and signboards that are not satisfied with the way things are going, and in order to excite and prejudice the minds of the oppressed tax payers of this county against me. While I am satisfied that there are not many who would believe that I would do anything that would be detrimental to the interest of the public, and while I am aware of the fact that a large number of our citizens are not posted as to the law on this subject, I think it proper and right that I should take this opportunity to explain it.

I here refer you to the acts of 1894, page 63, chapter 43, beginning at the second section, which reads as follows: "If as many as 25 per cent. of the qualified voters of any county shall sign and deliver to the fiscal court of such county a petition requesting the subject of taxation for the purpose mentioned in this act it shall be submitted to the voters of the county at the next regular county or state election to be held therein, thereupon the judge of said court shall order an election for this purpose, and if it be found that a majority of voters voting are in favor of levying said tax it shall be so ordered by said court," etc.

So you will see that the whole matter is in the hands of the tax payers. It begins with them and ends with them, and the county judge has nothing to do with it more than any other citizen, except to see that the people's will is carried out, and in case they want to take stock in the turnpike that it is properly done and that their interest is properly cared for. I wish to say in this connection that I am highly in favor of a turnpike from Torrent to Hazel Green, and all other improvements that are a benefit to our county. I am in favor of this turnpike being built by an incorporated company and paid for by the stockholders. And when made in this way it will be a great advantage to our country. It will make our farms worth more and will give us a better market for every thing we have to sell. It will give employment for our working men and will enable us to get everything we have to buy cheaper. It would entitle new life and energy in our citizens and tend to elevate and lift us up.

As to the propriety of the county taking stock in the turnpike in order to induce others to take stock, that is a matter altogether left to the voters. The law is so fixed that the county can not take more than $200 in stock to the mile of turnpike, and there can not be collected more than 10 cents on the $100 worth of taxable property in any one year for this purpose. The total amount of taxable property in our county is about $1,000,000, and we have about 1,800 tax payers, some of them non residents. The highest average amount that could be collected from each tax payer for any one year for this purpose would be about 60 cents. I make these statements and explanations that the tax payers may be posted on this subject, and so they may intelligently see just what there is in it.

I have heard that it has been said that if I was elected county judge I would be in favor of paying the county officers high salaries. This is another false alarm. I am in favor of paying them a reasonable compensation for their services and no more. I wish to say to those who have been circulating these false reports that I have enough perplexities of my own without being made a canal to bear for others the loads which they had as well carry themselves. Men do not like to anchor to quicksand nor to build on stubble. The permanent is what the world should seek. I would suggest for your own good and satisfaction that you begin now to tell the truth and constantly do so until you have formed a habit of so doing. Then you can tell it easily. A liar can never be at ease in the company of those he has deceived. He will have to keep his memory constantly on the stretch, lest the stories he tells will not harmonize as in this case.

ELECTROPOISE!

For Babies as Well as Old Folks.
I am glad to say that the Electropoise has cured me of rheumatism and illness, the result of typhoid fever, as well as catarrh. Have used it in the family from mother-in-law 75 years old down to the baby, used it on the baby while teething and it worked like a charm. For throat trouble we have never found anything to equal it. Several of my neighbors have them and are all well pleased. I can not say too much in praise of the Electropoise.

Brain Congestion and Vertigo Cured With the Electropoise.

Sir: Last July I was taken with vertigo, a congestion of the smaller blood vessels of the brain (hyperemia). I could not study; everything I ate disagreed with me; at last I ate no solid food, but even soups and liquid food did not agree with me; I was induced to try the "Electropoise." In one night's time it had relieved the brain congestion and vertigo. I began the next day to study; I ate from that time what I pleased, and since then I have been a comparatively well man.

Practical as Well as Theoretical.
I am much pleased with my experience with the Electropoise, and believe it in advance of any known remedy in theory for the restoration of the normal condition of the system, and its effects in the cure of disease has proved its efficiency practically and theoretically.

The race for congress in the Seventh Kentucky district seems to have narrowed down to Brackinridge and Settle, as there is strong talk of pulling Owens off.

Charles Wilford Mowbray, the English anarchist, made his first public appearance in this country on Monday. He addressed an audience of 500 at Clarendon Hall, New York.

The Lexington Press says the statement that Mr. Brackinridge has been dropped from the Masonic lodge to which he belongs in that city is absolutely without foundation.

D. C. Lisle, brother of the lamented congressman, Hon. Marcus C. Lisle, has withdrawn from the race for the nomination to succeed his brother, and the field is clear for Judge W. M. Beckner. The Transcript of that city publishes a list comprising 217 names for whom these bail bonds were issued, and follows that with interviews with Riley's patrons, many of whom paid him a fee of from fifty cents to $1, and others who promised to pay but did not. The legal fee for issuing a bond in that city is 45 cents.

William M. Day, an independent candidate for jailer in Morgan county, says: "THE HERALD is the paper that should come to every home, because it always brings news of much interest."

Elder J. A. Howard says: THE HERALD is booming in Morgan county. I have no trouble to get men to subscribe for it when I can get them to examine its columns of important news."

James Walsh, and his two most accomplished daughters Fannie and Katie, say: "THE HERALD is the most newsy paper published in Eastern Kentucky, and every body will be pleased when they read it."

Hon. W. B. Lykins, a prominent candidate for county judge of Morgan county, says: "THE HERALD is a most newsy paper, and is devoted to the good of the people in Eastern Kentucky, and everybody should take it."

R. E. and J. T. Caudill, the two twin brothers who married the two twin sisters, the much accomplished daughters of Wm. Wells, a well-to-do farmer of Morgan county, says: "THE HERALD is a good paper and we enjoy reading it."

Rev. S. J. Adams, a very prominent candidate for jailer of Morgan county, and a man beloved by all who know him, says: "I am acquainted with THE HERALD and its most popular editor, and it is a very good production in the newspaper line and everybody is pleased with it."

B. G. Lacy, a prominent candidate for constable in the third magisterial district of Morgan county, and whose official career has made him a host of friends, says: "THE HERALD is the paper for the home circle—devoted to the circulation of all important news—and that it should be in every home."

THE OLD DOMINION.

T. J. Stephenson Tells About His Travels in That State.

TIP TOP, VA., July 12. J. H. PERRATT: Under promise to write and give you the news from the long trip which I had in view when I last saw you. On the 4th of July I left my home on Lacy's creek to visit my birth place, and where the years of my boyhood were carelessly spent in old Virginia. On the fourth day, after riding some fifty miles a day, I landed at Darns where my sister, Mrs. Hattie Blankenship, lives. Next day I visited Richmond and took dinner with J. S. Higgins, botham, a brother in law of G. B. Swango, register of the land office. Mr. Higginsham is U. S. commissioner, which office he holds through life, and is a young widower of 41, just in the bloom of youth and seemed to be very much pleased when I told him of such a nice young widow that oftentimes walks the streets of Hazel Green, and he said: "Gosh dang if I live I will drop her a few lines and send her my picture." Richmond is one of the boom towns of the N. & W. extensions and bid fare for a thriving city. But owing to the recent financial condition of the country closed the glass factory, tube works, roller mills, mining, etc. Nothing of any enterprise is going on in this country. After a day or two of rest I started to visit relatives and friends, accompanied by my sister, whom I had not seen for thirteen years. On the second day I landed at J. H. Davidson's, an uncle of mine. I was surprised when I saw his wife with a young baby boy in her arms, although her head was in full bloom for the grave. Upon inquiry they told me that he found it in a rail pile near the railroad the last of March. When taken home it was almost frozen and could not cry. It was not more than an hour old when he found it. Has all the appearance of a smart child. They call him Moses. I will go from here to Bluefield, Pocahontas and other points along this line.

Enclose please find $2 for two years subscription to THE HERALD. Sent it to Mrs. Sarah Davidson, Whites Mills, Va., and send one to Mrs. Hattie Blankenship, Doran, Va. Respectfully, T. J. Stephenson.

MORGAN COUNTY.

Grassy Creek Grists. Cutting grass is the order of the day. Born, to the wife of W. T. Ward, a girl.

Willie Rose and wife, of Red river, visited relatives on Grassy Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Anna Roberson, of Pleasant Run, visited J. C. Havens and family Sunday and Monday.

Johanna Barker and little son Elmer, of Stillwater, visited his father, Henry Barker, last Saturday and Sunday.

Several of the candidates spoke at this place last Thursday. There was quite a crowd attended the speaking, and had good order except a little drinking.

Bob Dennis, of Omer, was in this neighborhood last week on business, and we think he will take up the Carpenter's trade soon, as he talks in that direction.

Rev. A. B. Stamper and others will begin a protracted meeting at the Old Grassy church near this place on Friday before the first Sunday in September and everybody is invited to attend.

Henry Barker has been employed to teach at the Caskey school house near here. He will begin teaching about July 30th, and we think the trustees have been wise in their selection. Also, Miss Lottie Kash, of your town, began teaching at the Long school house Monday morning, and all say Miss Lottie is a splendid teacher.

Married, at the residence of Frank Lawson, Dave Lawson to Miss Emma Gibson; attendants Leo Rose and Lou Alice Havens. Rev. Matt Adams officiated. After the ceremony was performed all were invited to dinner and the table almost groaned beneath the weight of its burden of the good things of this life, and all wish to express their thanks to Mrs. Bet Rose for the elegant manner in which she waited on the table. After dinner was served the wedding party, consisting of Leo Rose and Lou Alice Havens, Mary Rose, Emma Gibson, Dave Lawson and Mrs. Emma Lawson, spent the rest of the day riding, and all seemed to enjoy themselves quite well.

CINDERELLA.

For Enslavement.

J. M. Pieratt is in Mt. Sterling on business.

Miss Myrtle Wadley is visiting in Harrison county.

Flem Burton, who has been out west awhile, has returned.

James Fugate will teach the school at Flat Gap, and commenced last Monday.

Elders J. A. Howard and James Fugate will preach at this place Sunday night, July 29.

We have recently had some heavy showers of rain which was badly needed in this locality.

A new mail route has been established between this place and Dan, a new post office in "Young Brothitt."

A wedding is being talked of, and it is said that there is a "Nickel" in it, but that is not enough money to induce me to give the particulars.

A letter just received from Elder J. A. Howard states that he has closed a series of meetings in the neighborhood of Elk Fork and Spawes creek. The Christian church at Elk Fork, including officers, and all but a few members, declared for Christian union, and voted against the annual meeting being held at that place as was heretofore arranged.

There was public speaking here last Saturday by the candidates for the various offices of this county, and politics is "just a bilin," and vote swapping is on a boom, some good (?) people are showing themselves in the matter. I would just as soon sell my vote outright as to be guilty of such dealing, for when a man votes against one man in order to get help for his pet, he is sacrificing principle, and is being "used," instead of voting his sentiments, and a true patriotic citizen cannot afford to do it. BURN.

Wide awake school teachers should call at this office and purchase a supply of monthly school reports.

When in Lexington call on L. & G. STRAUS, Leading Clothiers, who carry a larger line of CLOTHING and sell for less money than any house in the bluegrass capital. A Watch free with every purchase of $5, or over.

THE HERALD

SPENCER COOPER, : : : Editor.

For Sheriff.

We are authorized to announce SHAM HENRY WILSON as a candidate for sheriff of Wolfe county, subject only to the will of the people at the polls in November, 1894.

THIS PAPER is all home printed, and it contains all the good things it contains. You should read every article on each of the eight pages. You will find all the local news that way.

Mrs. Jane Oldfield, of Grassy, is reported on the sick list.

THE HERALD is all home print now and only $1 a year.

Mrs. John H. Pieratt, of this place has been sick for some time.

Hollie Rose, of West Liberty, was in town on business Tuesday.

WANTED—At this office, a few nice country lanes, at 10 cents a pound each.

C. E. Lacey has resigned his position with W. T. Cuskey, and will go to farming.

W. D. Campbell on Monday last sold to H. F. Pieratt his fine jersey cow and calf for $30.

A man by the name of Means was killed by lightning near Rothwell station last Saturday.

Miss Florence Quickall is teaching the Daysboro school, and had about forty scholars in attendance.

Henry McLean will teach the Gillespie school in Morgan county, and will open for business next Monday.

Mrs. Joe Stephens and daughter Lillie, of Mt. Sterling, came in Sunday to visit relatives here for a week or so.

Tom Oldfields, of Grassy creek, accidentally shot himself through the head Tuesday while handling a loaded pistol.

Pieratt and Swango on Tuesday bought forty-four head of hogs from Neri Sweetman. They will weigh from 75 to 200 pounds.

Pumpkins, boils and other humors of the blood are liable to break out in the warm weather. Prevent it by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Register G. B. Swango, who has been visiting relations and friends here since the Champaign convention, left Sunday for Frankfort.

Mrs. Nannie Kashi began teaching the Frank Johnson school on Jacey creek Monday with about forty scholars to answer to the roll call.

Prof. W. H. Cord, writing from Wedon, in Mason county, says, "Kindly remember us to all." He does not say when he will come home.

Arbury Brooks is teaching school in Powell county, and current report says there are 105 scholars enrolled in the census report of his district.

Charley Gossney, of the Calabash neighborhood, who worked with John H. Rose at blacksmithing and wagon making last year, is again with him.

H. C. Hord, of this place, has the thanks of the editor and his better; for a fine live pig, which will sell near in remembrance of his kindness.

Miss Nannie Hord and W. H. DeBack, of this place, have each secured a school in Lee county, and incidentally we learn that they will begin on Monday, August 6.

Dandruff is due to an unclean state of the skin. Hall's Hair Renewer quickens the nutritive functions of the skin, healing and preventing the formation of dandruff.

Curtis Quickall is teaching the young idea to shoot at the Walters school house about Lee City, and opened school Monday with a large attendance for the first day.

Dart Neville, who joined the Teels Bros. at this place, left their show at Paintsville a few days since and came here for medical treatment under Dr. John A. Taulbee.

Grant Lacey, who has been in the west for a year or so, has accepted a position with H. F. Pieratt & Co., of this place, where he will be glad to see his many friends.

Miss Cora McIntire who has been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Evelyn McGuire, of St. Helens, and other relatives and friends in Lee county, returned home Saturday.

Owing to an unexpected and unprecedented increase in subscriptions since the first forms of this paper were put to press, we this week have to send our exchanges half sheet.

Trustees of the town of Hazel Green should not "make fish of one and fowl of another" in the matter of stock running at large on the streets, nor do we suppose they intend to, but that seems to be the case. Every day hogs are seen upon the streets, and people complain that the law is not enforced as it should be. They reason that if they have to keep up their hogs all others should be required to do so, which is certainly a logical conclusion. The whole thing is that the law should be enforced or unenforced.

Judge H. F. Day, of Mt. Sterling, Judge J. C. Lykins of Campton, and Thos. T. Cope, of Jackson, were here this week taking depositions in the case of Fielding Quinsberry's heirs against Joseph Chennault and others, now pending in the Wolfe circuit court. The action involves the ownership of about 1,800 acres of land in Wolfe and Powell counties—Winchester Sun.

Read the new advertisement of Fred Z. Heintz, the manufacturing powder of Lexington. He is the gentleman who makes the medals recently awarded at the academy, and all who deal with him can be assured of his reliability.

John Will Taulbee opened the public school at this place on Monday, and some sixty scholars showed up at the opening. Miss Minnie Day has accepted the position of assistant teacher, and assumed her duties on Monday.

Elder J. A. Howard has our thanks for thirty-one new subscribers this week. If other agents and friends of THE HERALD would do half as well, we would soon be able to put in an engine and print by steam.

The friends of Floyd Day will regret to hear that that gentleman is now quite ill of flux at Clay City. And the baby has fever. Mr. Day had a very severe spell of flux at this place a few years since.

John B. Davis left Monday for West Virginia, to work on the stockwork of a new courthouse which will take the best part of a year to complete. He contemplates moving his family about September.

T. E. Stephenson, who has been on a protracted visit to relatives and friends in Virginia, returned home on Monday. Elsewhere we publish a letter from him written while he was in Virginia.

W. W. Fyvie, representing Sanford Vanner & Co. clothiers of Portsmouth, Ohio, was here Monday and Tuesday with a fine line of samples for the inspection of our merchants.

J. T. Day and wife, who were detained at Winchester on account of the illness of their little grand-daughter, Mr. and Mrs. McLain's child, returned home Tuesday. The child is better.

The primary election for county officers in Morgan county will take place on Saturday, the day after tomorrow, and the political campaign is said to be boiling at a white hot heat.

Elder J. T. Pieratt will preach at Goodwins chapel next Sunday morning at 10:30, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The many friends of Mrs. Dr. Taulbee will regret to learn that she has been quite ill for a week or more.

WOLFE COUNTY.

Campton Currency.

Rev. Frank Creech has been assisting in the protracted meeting here.

The larger portion of the common schools in this section commenced Monday morning.

Mrs. Bell Manker, of Maytown, who was visiting relatives in town for a few days past, returned to her home Monday.

Bertie, little daughter of T. F. Stanger, has been very sick for two or three days, with something like croup.

T. K. Tatt Sr. and daughter, Rosaline, have been visiting friends and relatives in town for the past week, and attending the meeting.

It has been officially announced by the state superintendent that the per capita tax this year will only be $2.75. The making up of the smaller districts to $1 per capita will reduce the per capita in this county to about $2.70. While this is not as good as was expected by some, yet it is as good as we could reasonably have been expected, owing to the vast reduction in the amount of taxable property in the state.

John Tatt and Clarence Little were tried and acquitted on the charge of horse stealing. They were charged with having stolen Kelly Fink's horse. They were found guilty, and were taken to the station in the night, as we are informed. It is yet to be developed as to what their intentions were. Mrs. Martha Duff, wife of Samuel Duff is very ill at this writing and has been for several days. Her recovery is doubtful.

Revs. N. G. Robinson and David May, of Nicholas county, Kentucky, have been holding a series of meetings at this place for a little more than a week. The people all seem to be deeply interested, and much good is being accomplished. The church is being renewed and awakened. Souls are being saved. Some are attending to the church. From the indications a new era has dawned upon our town. The time has come, in our opinion, when morality and religion are to predominate, and vice and immorality are to give way under their blessed influences. The meeting still continues.

Lee City Locals.

Mason Pugh moved in town last week. Mrs. William Wells is visiting in town.

Money is scarce but our town is still improving.

Lee City others are painting their new store house.

We will have two more new dwellings erected soon.

Josh DeLusk, of Hazel Green, was in town on business Friday.

Born, July 16th, the wife of Clay Rose is boy, also, on the 19th, to the wife of Wiley Crenshaw, a girl.

Henry L. Taulbee and sister Mary Belle, of Taulbee, Breathitt county, Kentucky, was in town Sunday.

S. J. Wilson sold Frank Lacey a farm, near R. M. Wilson, on the State Road fork of Red river, last week. We guess Frank bought the farm for a little girl that came July 19th to live at his house. Frank and his wife will give her a name.

Laura Wilson died Sunday evening about seven o'clock. She was a daughter of R. M. and Elnora Umhida. She died singing "My heavenly home is bright and fair," saying "I want you all to meet me in heaven." She leaves an infant child, a father, mother and husband besides many other relatives and friends to mourn her loss.

Gettysburg Gettings.

G. W. Haulsey had a fine cow and steer killed by lightning a few days since. James M. Ely had a horse to run away in a suit the other day, but the horse was not hurt.

Our school began Monday with L. C. Graham as teacher. He is a good teacher and has taught here before.

The sad news comes to us this morning of the death of Mrs. Andrew Wilson, nee Laura Lindley, which is a shocking thought to all her relatives and friends, who are many. She leaves a husband and young babe to mourn her loss.

UNCLE REMUS.

Editor of HERALD: I have been preaching on Sparks creek, Long branch and Elk fork, and have had in the last week 75 additions to christian unity. Baptized 18. And the good work begins. I will preach with James Fugate, at Ezel, on the 5th Sunday night in this month. All are cordially invited.

George M. Gibson, of Mt. Sterling, well known here as a drummer for Carter Bros & Co. at one time, died Tuesday morning of consumption.

The candidates for county officers in Morgan county spoke at West Liberty Monday, it being county court day at that place.

Save the Children

By Purifying Their Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Pure Blood, Cures Scrofula, Etc.

"My experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla has been very effective. My little girl, five years old, had for four years a bad skin disease. Her arms and limbs would break out in a mass of sores, disfiguring yellow matter. She would scratch the sores as though it gave relief, and tear out the sores."

Two Bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla cured the eruptions on her head and the sores peeled off, after which the skin became soft and smooth. As a family medicine it is the best.

They were charged with having stolen Kelly Fink's horse. They were found guilty, and were taken to the station in the night, as we are informed. It is yet to be developed as to what their intentions were. Mrs. Martha Duff, wife of Samuel Duff is very ill at this writing and has been for several days. Her recovery is doubtful.

Revs. N. G. Robinson and David May, of Nicholas county, Kentucky, have been holding a series of meetings at this place we believe Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal and I recommend it. W. L. Kline, Blue Dale, Tex.

HON. D. S. GODSEY

Makes a Few Suggestions for the Salvation of the Country.

In the opinion of one of its humble citizens, while this opinion commends itself to the thinking people of this country on account of the healthy ideas contained, it is not the absolute law of the land—and is therefore not coercive at all, only suggestive.

1. Pass an absolute free trade bill, thereby abolishing all custom houses and their officials, saving many thousands to the people. In lieu of the revenue raised on imports, have a graduated income tax say of 1 per cent on incomes of $1,000 to $2,500, from $2,500 to $5,000 2 per cent, and so on up till they reach 10 per cent. In the same proportion. What this tax in connection with our present internal revenue lacks of raising revenue to meet the expenses of the government, let there be a license and tax levied for the purpose, and the wealth of the country will be made to bear the burden instead of the income of the poor, as now paid in duties on imports.

2. In addition to the rigid enforcement of the existing laws of immigration we want a law passed to exclude the illiterate and unoccupied foreigner, which would serve greatly to quiet in a few years the element of unrest and discord now existing among us.

3. We want a free coinage bill, coining all the gold and silver bullion mined in this country at a ratio of 16 to 1. In addition to this we want enough money loaned by the government directly to amount to $50 per capita in the United States, the result of which would be to a certain extent to lower or depreciate the value of money, which under existing circumstances is too dear, and correspondingly raise the value of property, causing a return of confidence by the people in property, which does not exist now. If any one should be so curious as to raise the question of how I would get this money in circulation for his benefit, I would inaugurate a system of internal improvements that the like had never existed here before, overhauling and rebuilding our navy to carry on the increased commerce upon the high seas, stocking and damming every navigable stream in the United States, building up levees, dredging the streams, laying off the states in more exact districts, building towns, postoffice buildings for same, etc. Also, I would be sure to pass a service pension law to every soldier. Talk about not getting the money in circulation. It is only one of the same kind of objections that we hear offered by those who are no friends to the common people of this country, that foreign powers will lose faith in our credit. To all such cutting hypercrits, we would say that the despondency and lethargy now prevailing would be shaken off by one or two years of active trade and business prosperity, brought about by lively trade and higher prices, which is the main-spring of action and essential to the prosperity of all governments by stopping depressions, suicides, failures, bankruptcies, etc. They would vanish with their prophetic disaster like mist before the morning sun, and in the great jubilee that would follow they would be forgotten forever.

4. Pass a bill laying a heavy tax on the use of electricity for the purpose of running street cars any way, if not more. It would not be much out of place if it was laid so high that it would amount to prohibition, and let the farmers furnish the mules to run them. It may be some time before we see all these things become law, but there is nothing that would have a greater tendency to bring prosperity and cause the great labor agitations to cease, and when the common people decide to come together to change or better their condition they will do it.

Now, in a passing way I have only referred to these things as being a part of the necessary legislation needed to bring about a reaction and save this republic from going to pieces, caused by laws that cannot be defended by any just man. Capital and labor are inseparable, and there should be no antagonism existing between them. And disturbances between them only tend to destroy both. They must go hand in hand, both up-building each other. Let us go to work and pass laws for the benefit of all the people. Stop loafing to the whims or wants of any foreign country, or even any class of our own people and you will see a healthy reaction set in that will soon destroy this socialistic idea, and anarchism now existing here, and drive out the idea that there is a millionaire there has been 999,999 people injured, but inaugurate the sentiment that where by honest industry a man has accumulated $1,000,000 he has benefited 999,999 men by adding to their smaller accumulations. We must ever uphold the fundamental principles of this government—of the right to accumulate property and acquire knowledge, without let or hindrance from any source whatever. Respectfully,

D. S. GODSEY,

Times for $1.000.

The Weekly Courier-Journal has announced another of its popular guessing contests, taking the temperature at Louisville during the month of August as the basis. One thousand dollars in cash will be given as presents to the new or old renewing subscribers who guess the hottest day, at Louisville, during August, and give the closest guess to the highest temperature the weather bureau thermometer will reach on that day. The subscription price of the Weekly Courier-Journal is $1 a year. Each guess must be accompanied by one yearly subscription. No newspaper published in the United States has been so liberal to its subscribers, or has offered such liberal prizes to secure new subscribers as the Courier-Journal. During the past 18 months it has given away in presents, absolutely free, $17,400 in money, not to mention such premium articles as sewing machines, watches, guns, etc. This is all in spite of the business depression, that is felt as much more in newspaper offices than in any other business. The Weekly Courier-Journal has just announced the lucky guessers in its May rainfall contest. There were 222 of these guessers, distributed over the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Kentucky, Texas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Indiana, Virginia, Missouri, Louisiana, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, Indian Territory, Michigan, South Carolina, North Dakota, West Virginia, New York, California, Florida, Washington and Oklahoma. No better indicator of the circulation of the Weekly Courier-Journal could be had than this list. Sample copies of the paper, with full details and blanks, may be had by sending a request on a postal card. Address Weekly Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky. Contest closes July 31.

Can These Things Be True?

For the good name of our country, we hope the following, which we find in the Winchester Democrat, is not true. Or that our officers at least do their duty. "Some of the cowardly scoundrels that infest some of the mountain counties are adopting a new mode of warfare to obtain revenge for fancied wrongs. The papers throughout that section have made mention of a number of cases where stock has been shot and killed or badly crippled. One farmer in Wolfe county had a yoke of oxen and a horse killed by these miscreants the past week. A singular feature of the affair is that the parties doing this work are known, but the proper officers are making no efforts to arrest and bring them to justice. The good people of the mountains should take the same prompt measure to suppress these dastardly wrongs as they have done in the matter of other criminals."
